

The views of an Xm Radio employee and listener: Does congress have anything else to do? I might have a project for them, how about "homeland security". This bill is ridiculous. You mean to tell me that someone actually thinks they have the right to strip other Americans of their right to exercise independence.

It doesn't make sense. We have hungry people in the streets, soldiers dying in Iraq, but let's worry about Satellite Radio. This is not only going to effect the 1.7 million subscribers to XM radio, but also the subscribers to Sirius. How are those customers going to feel when Sirius can no longer broadcast their local NFL teams anymore? If the American people feel that Satellite radio is worth their hard earned money on a service for entertainment. Then who has the right to stop that? I am strongly opposed to this, and I hope that the congressmen and women that we voted for office do the job that is expected and represent the people.
